1st MORTGAGE BONDS.
Issue Only $18,500 per Mile.

THE ROAD NOW EARNING NET, EARLY DOUBLE ITS INTEREST OBLIGATIONS.

THE LEADING POINTS IN RELATION TO THESE BONDS ARE AS FOLLOWS
The Stockholders have built a first class road and equipped it in a first class manner, mainly with their own money.
They have built their road through one of the richest portions of the State, where all the old roads into Chicago are earning over $10,000 per mile per annum, and are paying large and regular dividends
They have built the shortest road to the celebrated Black Coal Mines, whose products have large and increasing market in Chicago, in the manufacture of iron, as well as for domestic uses.
The road is already earning so large an excess of its interest liability that its Bonds are safe beyond contingency
The amount of the mortgage is very moderate, being only about $18 500 per mile
While Railroad Bonds may be plenty, at one upon profitable lines, and for so small an amount, are so dear in the market;
Over $1,200,000 of these Bonds have been sold in a few weeks to Trust Companies Savings Banks, trustees of estates, and the most careful private investors, so that but a small amount remains, for which early application should be made
Just nearly a small amount remains unsold, parties who wish them should make immediate application.
The Bonds are for $1,000 each have forty years to run, and bear interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, payable on the first of April and October, both principal and interest being payable in gold in New York.
Price 90 and Accrued Interest
We do not hesitate to recommend these Bonds as unusually safe They are attended with none of the uncertainties of projected enterprises, and the prompt payment of the principal, are as certain as any future financial event can well be.

GREELEY IN PORTLAND
When Mr Greeley left the City Hall Wednesday afternoon instead of proceeding at once to the Falmouth Hotel he was driven to James M. Churchill's on State street, where he passed a short time and thence returned to the hotel. The dinner was not served till 8½ p. m. in the gentlemen's parlor, places having been laid for twenty two. At either end of the table was an elegant pyramidal bouquet, and small bouquets were placed at each plate. The dinner fully justified the well known excellence of the hotel cuisine.—Hon. H Clifford, esq., and C. F. Kimball, esq., and the gentlemen of the Press from abroad in attendance upon Mr. Greeley The rest of the company were the Reception Committee solely. No speeches were indulged in.
In the evening it rained and for a long time it was doubtful whether it was advisable to have the serenade. But after the expense that had been incurred in the way of music —there having been three bands here at one time, the O'Connor's Band of Boston, Havers' Hall Cornet Band, and the Paleface Brass Band —I was thought best to go ahead. Prior to the serenade O'Connor's Band played popular airs (to a crowd of about one hundred umbrellas) from the headquarters in Market Square. About quarter past nine, headed by the Greeley Guards of Ward 2, with torches, the band sauntered down to the Falmouth, where perhaps 500 people were collected, and after a selection had been played Mr. Greeley stepped out on the balcony and told the assemblage that they knew what greatness he had attained; that if the young man before him followed his example they might become equally great, that he believed himself honest and possessed of charity to all.
Mr. Greeley withdrew into the hotel after his speech and three cheers from the crowd, a selection from the band, and two Roman candles and a blue light. After the band ceased playing the Greeley Guards and others also assembled in the hall and spent the evening in a pleasant social way.

Not many weeks ago Horace Greeley was riding in the horse-cars in the city of New York. SPECIMEN GREELEY REFORMERS.

Ex-Senator J. R. Doolittle has been one of the "big guns" of the Greeley coalition, he was chosen to preside over the Baltimore Convention, and his advent into Maine as a champion of reform was hailed by all the Democratic journals with the most fulsome eulogy upon the probity, purity and loftiness of his character. Unfortunately for Doolittle the N. Y. Times saw fit to publish a chapter of his history and the glory of his name departed. Even the Tribune is dumb, and the Times remarks thereon as follows:—

"We publish to-day a few extracts, selected at random from hundreds of articles which we have observed in our exchanges, relative to the letters written by ex-Senator Doolittle to and from himself. It will be observed that our contemporaries in all parts of the country think Doolittle's baseness worthy of some little attention. It is only the New York Tribune—now an organ that studiously refrains from making any allusion to the subject. It did, indeed, intimate that Doolittle might have "something to say" in reference to the charges. But Doolittle is dumb, and the Tribune dare not publish the correspondence which convicts him of having acted in an exceedingly dishonorable manner. There is not silence from the Tribune has not defended during the past three years. Is it strange that it should try to shield Doolittle?

We have stood ready to publish any reply or defence which Doolittle chose to lay before the public. But not a word has come from Greeley's chief advocate on the stump. Meanwhile, we have had his scandalous letters photographed, and wherever Doolittle shows his head hereafter, copies of these letters will be found ready waiting for him. If he challenges their authenticity, we make him the offer, and will keep it perpetually open. Let him name an umpire of his own choosing. We will name a second. These two shall name a third—and to these three persons we will submit the whole of the correspondence, in its original form, and accept their decision upon it whatever it may be. Is that fair? Or is there any other test to which we can bring Doolittle? Let him name it, if there is, and we will do our best to meet his views. Only do not let him be so silly as to imagine that this affair will "blow over." We have no intention of allowing it to do that. Doolittle has been going about the country preaching up morality and honesty and abusing Gen. Grant for "taking presents." He is now convicted of a most base and dishonest act himself, and hopes to sneak out of it under cover of silence. The Tribune proposes to help him, just as it helped A. Oakey Hall and Sweeney and the rest of the Tammany gang under correspondingly circumstances. But a newspaper only injures itself when it suppresses the truth, as the Tribune is finding to its cost.

It must not be forgotten that Doolittle is a man of considerable importance to Greeley. He was chairman of the Convention which nominated the "Sage" as the candidate of the Democratic Party. He has been on the stump ever since, calling heaven to witness to his own exalted character, and denouncing Republicans as thieves and rascals. He and Kilpatrick are Greeley's chief "orators"—for it is not worth while mentioning Theodore Tilton, a man who has written an indecent book to prove that Victoria C. Woodhull is the noblest (and loveliest) woman of the age, and that she is in nightly communion with Demosthenes. These are the men who lead the "movement" which is to regenerate modern society, and purify American politics! When one of them is exposed, Greeley's organ suppresses the facts. When another is shown up, it calls for actions for libel, and declares that the Times has been indicted by the Grand Jury. How many people are deceived by this impudent game? The Greeley organs may cry "hush" when Doolittle's correspondence is called for, but they will not succeed in blinding the eyes of the public. Those letters will be read in every part of the land. Once more, we offer to publish any explanation of them which Doolittle may offer. We will agree to any fair method he likes to propose with a view of testing their genuineness. But he must not hope that we or the public will forget the subject, or that Greeley's paper will be able to protect him from the consequences of his misconduct.

Mr. Bucktalew, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, has not yet declared for Greeley, and it is believed that such an avowal would cost him thousands of votes, so unpopular is that cause among the Democrats in some portions of that State.

"As to the administration of Gen. Grant: I recognize no one as a Republican who is not grateful for the wisdom, energetic and successful efforts."—HORACE GREELEY.

WEST VIRGINIA.

[From the Hon. on Globe, Independent.]

The election on Thursday, 22d inst., in the new State of West Virginia, is of an exceedingly complicated character. In the first place, the question of adopting a new Constitution is to be voted upon; and in the second the members of the State government and three Congressmen are to be voted for provisionally; their election to take effect if the new Constitution is adopted. At the present time West Virginia is the hands of the State Rights or secession wing of the Democratic party, they having carried the State in 1870 by 2150 majority in the election for Governor; and in 1872 by 2851 majority upon the question of calling a convention to amend the State Constitution.

The new Constitution prohibits the passage of any registry law, forbids the instruction of black and white children in the same schools, and in a separate clause, to be voted upon by itself, PROHIBITS COLORED PERSONS FROM ELECTION OR APPOINTMENT TO OFFICE. This precious specimen of "reconciliation" is the work of Democrats, and its adoption will be opposed at the polls by the Republicans. The present Constitution is far more liberal in its character, and contains those elements of equality and progress which the renovated ideas of popular rights have made essential to Republican government. The reactionary substitute which is offered in its place is in open conflict with the amendments to the national Constitution, and well illustrates what the black men may expect under the State sovereignty doctrines of the Cincinnati platform.

The regular State Rights candidate for Governor is Johnson N. Camden, and his competitor is John J. Jacob, the present incumbent, who is a rolling Democrat, and an opponent of the Greeley coalition. For Congress, John J. Davis, a Democrat, the present member for the First District, runs again as an independent candidate; he having repudiated the Greeley movement. His opponent is Benjamin Wilson, a Greeley Democrat. In the Second District no regular party candidate is running, as the opinion is general there that the proposed election at this time is irregular and illegal. Ward H. Lamon the biographer of Lincoln, is, however, "running on his own hook." In the Third District, Frank Hereford, the present member, had a Greeley Democrat, is running, and his opponent is J. Brisbin Walker, a Grant Republican.

The role of the Republicans in this singular contest appears to be to vote against the new Constitution, to help defeat the Greeley candidates for State offices and to throw their Congressional votes so as to aid the bolting anti-Greeley Democrat in the First, and the Grant Republican candidate in the Third District. If the new Constitution should be defeated at the polls, the election for State officers under it would go for nothing, and it is very questionable whether the choice for members of Congress will be sustained, let the Constitution be rejected or not. It is thought by many that the Congressional elections will have to be held again as the regular time, viz., on the fourth Tuesday of October.

"ALL 'HONORABLE' MEN." The Portland Press thus remarks of an amusing characteristic of the Greeley politicians:—

"Hon. Marcellus Emery, esq.," is what one of our Maine editors was recently called in his own paper. There is something almost pathetic in this, said to the philosophic observer it affords a clew to the readiness with which Democrats and Liberals alike have this year abandoned principle in the scramble for office. A perfect craze for titles has taken possession of two or three score of men in this State. They are as mad as March hares on the subject. Our brevet Governors, Pillsbury and Kimball, have for several years been the butt of all who have noted their weakness. "Hon." Marcellus Emery has for some time afforded a fair mark for the sharp thrusts of the Whig. "Col." Lang must have been promoted from the ranks on the field by "Gen." Cook. Can't something be done to satisfy the longings of these gentlemen in a legitimate way, without resorting to the dreadful expedient of electing them to office?

STEPHENS ON GREELEY. Alexander H. Stephens is one of those unblushing State Rights Democrats at whose feet the editor of the Commercial has sat for years. What does the latter think of Alexander's opinion of Greeley as below?

"Our neighbor, as repeatedly said of late that Mr. Greeley's past should be forgotten, that he now bears the standard of Constitutional Union. On this point, we are at direct issue with him. We oppose Greeley for the presidency as we do upon position and principle. We assert that the new sanctions all the usurpations by which ten States were put under the heel of despotism, and to-day upholds and sanctions all the principles of the infamous Enforcement Acts, and the Ku-Klux bills. Does our neighbor deny this? If he who holds and maintains these principles be bearer of the standard of Constitutional Union, I pray him, if he can, point out a single usurpation or act of despotism by the Grant wing of the Radical party, under which the people now groan, which was not approved and is not now sanctioned by Mr. Greeley?"

Does Emery now agree with Greeley in upholding the "usurpations" "enforcement acts" etc., so bitterly denounced hitherto?

NEW YORK REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.—The Republican State Convention at Utica, N. Y., on Wednesday, was largely attended, harmonious and very enthusiastic. Hon. W. A. Wheeler of Franklin county presided, and spoke eloquently in support of President Grant. The names of Gen. John A. Dix, John C. Robinson, W. H. Robertson, Martin I. Townsend, Freeman Clarke, A. S. Diven and Thurlow Weed were announced as candidates, when E. Delafield Smith seconded the nomination of Gen. Dix, as a candidate who would win the support of honest Democrats, and after cordial endorsement by many other members, on motion of Gen. Bruce, Gen. John A. Dix was acclaimed as the Republican candidate for Governor amid tremendous cheering.

Gen. John C. Robinson was nominated for Lieut.-Governor, and in the evening Hon. Lyman Tremaine was nominated for Congressman-at-large, Hon. S. L. Woodford withdrawing. Reuben H. Stroud for Canal Commissioner and Ezra Graves for State Prison Inspector completed the State ticket.

Frederick Douglass was the first selected for Presidential elector at large amidst great and long-continued applause. Emil Sauer and Stewart L. Woodford were next chosen.

A full ticket for district electors was also chosen, and last but the strong names of George W. Curtis, S. B. Chittenden, H. J. Claflin, William K. Dodge, Joel W. Mason, Salem H. Wales and Andrew D. White.

Resolutions were adopted declaring that this party which nurtured slavery, brought on the war and resisted reconstruction is a menace to public security through the false hope of a Democratic re-action, and that the annihilation of the Democratic party is essential to complete national harmony. The necessity of pushing on the reform which has crushed the Tammany plunderers is urged, and the Republican party pledged to its prosecution. President Grant and Senator Wilson are warmly endorsed on the Philadelphia platform, the claim of loyal soldiers and sailors are heartily recognized, the management of State affairs is unstintingly reviewed and the declaration made: "That we welcome to our ranks honest Democrats who sphere straightforward coalition which is also those which discarded elements of the Republican party."

The boasted $10,000 bet said to have been deposited in the New York Herald Tribune office, that Greeley would be elected, was proved to be a humbug by several determined Grant men in the metropolis Wednesday, who called with the funds, but were unable to find a chance or get any information at the office.

REPUBLICAN GRAND MASS MEETING AT AUGUSTA. Our friends on the Kennebec are wide awake and pushing the campaign with vigor. On Friday, August 30, at 2 o'clock P. M., a grand Republican mass-meeting will be held at Augusta, when Hon. Henry Wilson, Hon. B. F. Butler, Frederick Douglass, Gen. John M. Harlan of Kentucky, Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Hon. Lot M. Morrill and other distinguished speakers are announced to be present. In the evening there will be a grand parade of Tanners, with speaking in Granite and Meonian Halls. Extra trains will provided, with reduced fares, and a rousing time may be expected.

"GOD AND OUR COUNTRY!" At the nearly meeting of the Free Baptists of Penobscot County, held at Dexter on Wednesday, 21st inst., the following earnest and patriotic resolutions on the "State of the Country" were adopted:—

Resolved: First, That while we joyfully receive repenting sinners into Church and Nation, we do not feel to clasp hands with and press to our hearts those who have not brought forth works meet for repentance.

Second, That we are constrained to feel that the spirit of rebellion in our beloved country is not fully subdued; that it only awaits a prosperous gale to set it all ablaze again; and that we can no more rejoice over rebel victories at the ballot-box than we once could over rebel victories on the field.

Third, That we feel called upon to unfully defend for our entire country the free institutions which our fathers, husbands, brothers and sons died to save, and that we will seek Divine aid that we may not for worldly honor, pride or pelf, prove recreant to trusts thus transmitted to us in blood.

"Whatever chastisement may be deserved by our national sins, we must hope that this disgrace and humiliation, [of having the democracy restored to power] will be spared us."—HORACE GREELEY.

Schenck's Mandrake Pills for Liver Complaint.

Liver Complaint, Jaundice and all bilious disorders arise from torpidity of the Liver, causing a flow of bilious matter, inflammation of that organ producing an overflow into the stomach and intestines, or from a derangement of the digestive organ with which the liver is closely connected. Unhealthy bile in the gall bladder and the liver, all laboring, crowding, thickening and rendering it unfit for blood, and which it then circulates over the body, causing sallowness and torpor of the whole system. All of the above described derangements of the functions of the liver produces an inactive state of disease the whole of the organ below, the stomach—a white coating on the tongue, sometimes both; a general dullness and inactivity, feeling, nervousness and sleepless, gross weariness; faintness are often felt. The stomach laboring to digest food, often creates a palpitation of the heart, and is frequently mistaken for heart disease. Frequently the skin breaks out in blotches and sores, a marked symptom of every species, with severe itching and insufferable restlessness. The irritation from scorged bile in the blood, produces any irritation of the mucous membrane of the intestinal tubes, and from a slight cold diverse complaints, with a very rery expectoration; often nausea and vomiting, the patient will suffer from faintness at the stomach, sour eructations, with the bitter juice into the mouth, and dizziness in the head, sometimes pain in the back, and dazzling in the eyes, through the shoulder blade, and frequently all the body; a soreness is frequently felt about the region of the liver, across the side back and spine, many dangerous complaints have their origin in a derangement of the liver and stomach. Two-thirds of the cases of Consumption originate from liver complaint, Dyspepsia, Constipation and bilious fevers, bilious colic, costiveness, diarrhea, chills and fever, &c. Frequent use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills will remove all these complaints, as they have a real practice in any of the Courts of the State, or United States Courts.

Special attention given to the collection of claims and demands, &c.

We promise promptness, accuracy and reasonable charges, in all business entrusted to our care.

MAINE NEWS.

FROM AUGUSTA.

Special dispatch to the Whig & Courier.

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 22.

John Dixon, a young man 18 years of age employed in the freight yard of the Maine Central Railroad, was instantly killed about noon today. He was engaged in turning two cars upon a side track known as Lambert's turnout, by means of a switch-rope some thirty or forty feet long. He had signalled the engineer to slacken up, but before he could draw the pin from the shackle the rope caught upon a switch frame and threw Dixon under the car. His body was badly bruised, his left leg broken below the knee, the thigh entirely crushed, the neck badly cut, the windpipe crushed and the jaw broken. Death was probably instantaneous. The death was purely accidental, and no blame can be imputed to any one.

Coroner Libby summoned a jury before whom the foregoing facts were given in evidence and a verdict rendered accordingly.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

NEW YORK.

GOLD COUNTERFEITING.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. An engraver named Cunningham has been arrested here, on a charge of manufacturing bogus warrants of the Mississippi, of which it is said that $30,000 have been paid at the Auditor's office of that State.

THE WHEAT CORNER.

The recent collapse of the wheat corner at Chicago does not affect parties here as the dealers at the New York Produce Exchange held aloof from it.

THE BRUISERS—A CORRESPONDENT DISCOVERED THAT NO NOSES WERE BROKEN.

A Steubenville dispatch to the Herald says that Mace and O'Baldwin, with some two hundred friends, were left all night in the woods at Caldwell's station, as no train would stop there to take them to Steubenville. The quibbling about a referee occupied so much time after the ring was formed that night, Cameron with set one having been agreed upon. The affair has thoroughly disgusted every one, and this second failure to have a fight was so impudent as to be unworthy the name of the meanest prize-fighter in the country."

THE PLAGUE SHIP.

The Spanish frigate Numancia has been condemned by the health officers as a plague ship. She is undoubtedly an old infected craft. Fumigation is useless and new cases of malignant disease break out daily. Application to her commander for davits to clean her bottom and for coal have been denied.

IN GENERAL.

Prince Sunalilo, of the Sandwich Islands, arrived yesterday and proceeded to Washington.

A five mile rowing match for $5000 a side between John Biglin and Ellis Ward is coming off at Nyack, Sept. 19th.

The Brooklyn elevators are still guarded by the police against the threatened attack by longshoremen.

MISSOURI.

ARCHER'S MURDER DISCOVERED—FIVE DEAD BODIES BEING CARTED OFF—A WIFE AND FAMILY SLAUGHTERED.

MARYSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 22. An atrocious murder was brought to light yesterday by the arrest of a man named Osborne at Clermont, a small town eleven miles northwest of this city. It appears that Osborne was travelling with a team and covered wagon and stopped for some purpose, when some men were attracted to the wagon by the stench proceeding from it. Upon an examination of the wagon were found. Osborne confessed at the end of a rope that the murders were committed by one Williams near Hadon, Kansas, and that he Osborne was employed to take the bodies out of the way. He confessed that he had travelled with that load five days. From information found on the body of it was inferred that they were a party of movers consisting of Mr. Ons, his wife and two children, and a young man named Dickinson, who is supposed to be a brother of Mrs. Ons. The last memorandum made by the young man was at or near Hadon.

FIVE DEAD BODIES

ONE OF THE VICTIMS

THE CORONER

held an inquest yesterday and the bodies were buried at Clermont. Sheriff Wray just returned here and says that he thought he saw the prisoner at Clermont. The people would not give him time. It is thought that Osborne will be executed by the people who have him in charge.

ILLINOIS.

THE WHEAT CORNER.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. The wheat corner is more disastrous than was at first reported.—The decline is over $2,000,000. There is no sympathy felt for the ruined men who were in the ring.

POLITICAL.

NEW YORK—THE APOLLO HALL DEMOCRACY BOLT DIX.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. The Apollo Hall Democracy have resolved to hold elections in all the Congressional Districts to elect delegates to the Louisville Convention. The Executive Committee will meet for this purpose this week also to recommend the support of Gen. Dix.

THE WORLD BLUSTERING.

The World says that the resolutions of the State Republican Convention yesterday, in voting Democrat votes and the nomination of General Dix as a candidate for Governor amounts to an abject appeal for Democratic assistance. It says there was never a worse beaten ticket than this one will be, headed by Dix on the false pretence that he is a Democrat.

THE "TIMES"

considers the ticket the strongest that could be made. Of the platform, it says it pledges the Republican party to continued reform, and invites honest Democrats to assist in the work.

THE TRIBUNE AND HERALD CONCEDE THE STRENGTH OF THE TICKET.

The Tribune and Herald think Gen. Dix the very strongest nomination which could have been made by the Republicans. Thurlow Weed is said to have influenced the Convention to take this course.

IOWA REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

DES MOINES, Aug. 22. The Republican State Convention met here yesterday and organized by the election of Robert Lowrie as permanent Chairman? Resolutions warmly endorsing Grant and his administration were unanimously adopted.

J. T. Young was nominated for Secretary of State; William Christy, State Treasurer; John Russell, Land Office, and Gen. Baker, Attorney General.

The Convention was very large and great enthusiasm manifested.

VIRGINIA AND THE STRAIGHT-OUTS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. Colonel Mosby writes that the State will carry Virginia unless O'Conor is nominated, who will then carry it. Twenty-five thousand copies of Blanton Duncan's circular calling for the election of delegates to Louisville, were sent from Washington yesterday.

NORTH CAROLINA.

A Washington special reports that Judge Bond has arranged to have the enforcement acts as amended by the last session of Congress put in force in North Carolina during the coming Presidential election.

THE JERSEY "STRAIGHT-OUTS."

The New Jersey straight-outs will meet in Convention at Trenton Saturday, to elect delegates to Louisville, and to choose State electors. Addresses are to be made by Samuel J. Bayard and Judge Flanders.

ILLINOIS VETERANS

CHICAGO, Aug. 22. [Special.] are being taken here to organize State Grand Army and Navy Club, extending over all the State.

ANOTHER ZEBRA WEDDING.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 22. In the Liberal Republican Convention at Jefferson City yesterday afternoon, a Committee of fifteen were appointed, to confer with a similar Committee of the Democratic Convention; and a Committee of three was appointed to notify the Convention of the action taken. After a brief recess the latter Committee reported that they had been well received by the Democratic Convention, and the Convention then adjourned until this morning.

NOMINATION DECLINED.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 22. The Union this afternoon authoritatively announces that Chief Justice Church, after mature consideration, feels constrained by sense of duty, as well as by inclination, to unqualifiedly decline the nomination for Governor by the Democratic State Convention, so generously and persistently urged upon him from all parts of the State.

NOMINATIONS.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Aug. 22. The Republicans of the 2d District nominated S. A. Dobbins for Congress.

LETTER FROM SENATOR WILSON.

The Boston Journal of to-morrow morning will publish the following letter from Senator Wilson in reference to charges of drunkenness made by Rev. G. W. Denison of Washington, against President Grant:

NATICK, Au . 21, 1872.

To Rev. C. W. Denison:—

SIR:—I have just read in the Springfield Republican of this date your letter on the drinking habits of General Grant. I am astonished at seeing myself quoted as saying to you in a conversation last winter "President Grant drinks too much. I have told him so." Senator Wilson you say, will not deny this. I do deny in the most emphatic language that I have ever said anything of the kind to you or anything that resembles it. Your statement is unqualifiedly false. During the last nine years I have seen General Grant hundreds of times. I have seen him in his camp, in his family, at his own and at the table of others, at home and abroad, and I have never seen him under the influence of intoxicating liquors. I remember distinctly our conversation. You referred to the slanders concerning the President's drinking habits. I told you what I have said to others: that I regretted the President used intoxicating liquors at all; that I wished he would take the pledge, and that I had in the past been to join the Congressional Temperance Society. What I said of the President I have said of all our public men who use intoxicating drinks or furnish them at their tables. I have for years felt that if our public men would wholly abstain from their use as a beverage they would confer lasting benefits upon their country and upon their race. Nor have I any doubt, if the facts in this case could be known in regard to the cases referred to in your singularly reckless statements, it would appear that each one of them was a cruel and malignant slander.

(Signed.) H. WILSON.

About three hundred excursionists were on the train, which started at 7 o'clock, and a dispatch from Danforth reported four hundred and ten on reaching that place. WAS IT MURDER?

FOUND ON A MAN FOUND IN KENDUSKEAG STREAM — HIS SKULL CRUSHED, AND WALLET RIFLED—COULD IT HAVE BEEN ROBBERY AND MURDER, OR WAS IT ACCIDENT?—VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY, ETC.

About seven o'clock yesterday morning as the men employed in Pletcher's stone yard on the wharf in the rear of Messrs. Wood, Bishop & Co.'s block, were going to work, they discovered a man's hat lying on the wharf and near by it a leath wallet, opened and empty, while about it a scattered scrip of small, denominations to the amount of $4.65, and some coppers. They at once went to the edge of the wharf, and looking over discovered the on the bed of the stream, close by the piling. The tide was out, and the water had covered the body, which rested face downward, on the hands and knees, which latter were drawn up at right angles to the trunk.

A party of the workmen and a number of persons who were gathered on the spot went down to the bridge and procuring a scow pulled it up to the spot and lifted the body out, when it was discovered that on the head, behind the right ear, was a from which blood commenced flowing freely as soon as the corpse was moved. Further examination showed that a large piece of the scalp was torn away, apparently by a blow from a stone or some blunt instrument, but the skull itself was not fractured.

Officer Sweetser, who had been summoned, sent at once for Coroner Wilson, who impanelled a jury, and proceeded to obtain all the evidence bearing on the case that could be found. The body was identified as that of a mason by trade, some 38 or 40 years of age, and who resided at 87 York street. He was a sober, steady, hard-working man, and has anxiety is to vote so as to secure to obtain on a job for Mr. J. F. Parkhurst. Last Saturday night Mr. Parkhurst gave him a check for $75, but finding this was an over-payment of $20 on the job mentioned, he saw the deceased on Monday and informed him of the fact. McCarthy returned the check, asking Mr. Parkhurst to pay him the $55 due in cash, but not having it at hand, Mr. Parkhurst told him to get the check cashed which he did, keeping $55 and returning $20 to Mr. Parkhurst. As we learn, McCarthy was a very particular man in money matters, keeping his funds with himself, and allowing no one to "bank" for him. It is therefore supposed he had this money with him on Wednesday night. If so, the question arises, where is it now?

The Coroner's jury, after careful consideration of the evidence, rendered the following VERDICT.

The Jury impanelled to enquire into the death of Dennis McCarthy, found drowned in Kenduskeag stream, Aug. 22d, find that the principal cause of said McCarthy's death was drowning. We also find that deceased had received a severe wound on the back of the head, from some blunt instrument or stone, sufficient to render him unconscious, and that in our opinion the said Dennis McCarthy was foully dealt with and murdered.

McCarthy leaves a wife and one child, who are now visiting in Belfast, we believe.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

Since the above was in type we have learned that Mr. McCarthy had been out collecting bills on Wednesday, and his friends state that as near as they can judge he had over $300 in money on his person that evening.

Besides the calf-skin wallet which was found on the wharf, he was in the habit of carrying a long pocket-book in his breast pocket, in which he usually put his money. This cannot be found, and putting the facts together it seems most likely that Mr. McCarthy was decoyed down upon the wharf—perhaps to look at some stone in the stone-yard—by some Italian, who after robbing him down and rifling his pockets of his hard-earned money threw his insensible form into the stream where he was found. Several persons report hearing shouts, about one o'clock Thursday morning, and it is possible that he uttered them in a struggle for life. The whole affair is shrouded in mystery, and creates much excitement. McCarthy's friends believe he was murdered, and say they will spare no effort in ferreting out the murderer.

THE RALLY AT WINN.

WINN, Aug. 22, 1872.

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier:

The Republicans of Northern Penobscot turned out a thousand strong to-day to unfurl to the breeze a splendid Grant and Wilson flag, and to listen to the eloquence of our own Senator Hamlin and other speakers, who lent us their counsel and their voice. From Bangor also we had the Bangor Cornet Band and a large number of citizens. Due preparations had been made so that all went smoothly, and a quiet and attentive crowd found good seating accommodations around the stand which had been built near Ross' Hotel. At 2 o'clock P. M. Caleb Estes, Esq., of the Committee of Arrangements, called the assembly to order, reading a list of officers and calling upon A. B. Chase, Esq., President of the Grant and Wilson Club at Winn, to preside.

Mr. Chase on taking the chair made a brief speech, after which the flag was run out on a line stretched from the roof of the hotel to a flag-staff on the opposite side of the street.—The banner was saluted with a round of cheers, after which the organization of the meeting was completed by the election of thirty Vice Presidents—prominent citizens of all the towns in the northern part of the county—and Messrs. James H. Burgess and B. F. Fernald as Secretaries.

George Cutler, Esq., of Medway, was then introduced to the audience, and made a brief but effective speech, in which he sustained the reputation he has already established. As the conclusion of his remarks three cheers were given for Mr. Cutler, who was followed by Hon. Hannibal Hamlin. Mr. Hamlin was received with characteristic and hearty applause, holding the audience spell-bound with his supporters there, bled to Bradford, forty miles from the place of his birth, but attractive to him because it is the residence of the leading 'Liberal' of the State. From there he went to Lancaster, the home of the Chairman of the thin New Hampshire delegation at Cincinnati. A deep-seated affection for childhood's home and childhood's friends spoiled have led his footsteps in another direction. He had a perfect right to go where he was inclined to go, but it is only just that the purpose of his visit to his native State should be understood. As he himself intimated in his Hampden speech, it is duty, imperative duty, that has called him to make this journey, not "deep affection for the scenes of his childhood."

THE LAST GREELEY HOORAH.

The nonsensical trash concocted in Washington as an attack on Secretary Boutwell, which the Commercial hastened to publish, as it does every indecent and absurd slander. The Boston Advertiser's special says:

The manifesto of the Democratic resident campaign committee against Secretary Boutwell's management of the Treasury Department, charging incompetence, and suggesting malfeasance and impeachment, receives very little notice, and has entirely failed to produce a sensation among the officials who ought to be most deeply affected. The document is regarded as having only the one merit of ingenuity in construction, its elements being put together simply with intent to deceive, although open, both in details and conclusion, to fair and complete refutation by the simple matter of the alleged issue of duplicate bonds is a fair sample of the character of the whole document. So far from having issued duplicate bonds except when required by special act, the Treasury Department can demonstrate that it has never paid a duplicate coupon in all the millions of interest that it has been disbursed; and further, that the existence of duplicate bonds is an impossibility.

MAINE POLITICS.

A splendid Grant and Wilson flag, purchased by the citizens of Foxcroft, arrived there on Saturday. It is 20x30 ft., and the handsomest flag in the county. It will be thrown to the breeze on Friday, the day appointed for the grand rally at that place.

Secretary Robeson, who is summering in Rye Beach, addressed the Republicans of Kittery and Portsmouth, at the Methodist church in Kittery, Tuesday evening. He spoke at Saco Wednesday, and also where during the week.

Gen. Hall, in his speech at Lancaster, Pa., said that in his town names were obtained to the anti-Blaine convention call, by representations that it was a petition for the removal of the Superintendent of Schools.

Forty-three republican flags were counted in Worthop on Monday, flying from stores and private residences. The streets present a lively and beautiful appearance with the flag of our country of different sizes, bearing the names of the next President and Vice President of the United States.

The Bath Times is now busy publishing the cards of Republicans who were deceived into signing a call for a Liberal Republican Convention at Bath on the 27th inst., or instances surrounding it in case, and believing that the ends of public justice will be better subserved and the policy of the Government, of which the presence of his cadet in the Military Academy is a part, maintained by a commutation of the sentence than by its rigid enforcement, the President is pleased to mitigate it by substituting for dismissal from the service of the United States reduction from his academic standing one year."

VIEWS OF AN HONEST LIBERAL. Hon. Stanley Matthews of Cincinnati, who was chosen temporary chairman of the Liberal Convention in that city, and has been a leading spirit among the sincere reformers, in a letter dated the 12th instant says: "My only anxiety is to vote so as to secure to the country at large the best attainable administration of affairs. It is a necessary condition to the successful accomplishment of desired political reform that we should secure those which have already been achieved and preserve the spirit which has achieved them. I see no way of effecting that object but by maintaining the ascendancy of the Republican party. In the event of its overthrow by the present combination against it, under the leadership of Mr. Greeley, I think there is reason to fear that much of the good done by Republican influence will be undone, and that the spirit of reaction set in motion by such a success will be the way effectually for some time to come of any further improvement. The great principle established by the Republican party, now incorporated in our national Constitution, is that of the political and civil equality of all men, to be enforced by national authority. This principle is so fore go to the history, traditions, professions and practices of the Democratic party that we may be sure that if it obtained control of the government it would do everything possible to overthrow it. If it cannot openly and directly repeal or overrule it, it would be substantially effected by limiting its operation and by refusing to act or legislate in its behalf when necessary, and to refuses the constitutional provisions in its behalf to a dead letter."

LETTER FROM FREDERICK DOUGLASS.

Senator Sumner's officious championship of Mr. Frederick Douglass, in reference to the San Domingo Commissioners' dinner, is naturally very distasteful to that gentleman. In a private letter to C. J. Langdon, Esq., of Kimira, which the Advertiser publishes, he says: "I believe in Gen. Grant fully. There is something so ridiculous about this dinner affair, that I really do not care to talk or write about it. While it would have given me much pleasure to dine with our worthy President, and while an invitation to dine with him in the circumstances would have been a valuable compliment, prevailing public opinion, he should be ashamed to charge the omission to invite me as an offense against me or my race. The President was under no obligation to invite me to dine with him. It was not to be supposed he had a perfect right to act free from outside guidance or outside criticism. I very much enjoyed my dinner at your hospitable table last winter, as I had enjoyed thirty years ago good dinners at the table of your noble father, but while I appreciate the kind hospitality in both cases, I do not bring any complaint against numerous good people by whom I did not happen to be invited to dine. I may be forced to say a word more to the public on this subject, but I would rather avoid it. It is enough that I am with all my heart laboring to elect U. S. Grant President of the United States. I cannot help but feel, I certainly should not so labor if I thought him capable of offering me an insult because of the color of my skin."

ANOTHER FEATURE REFORMER. Cassius M. Clay having joined the Greeleyites, and having made many professions of a desire to "reform" the government, the Chronicle says: "He was notified that he could no longer disgrace the government at Russia in an official capacity. Gen. Grant sent Gov. Curtin to Russia. The history of Mr. Clay's career abroad was buried among the records of the State Department, whence it would not have been called but for the advent of the gentleman as a champion of reform in the administration of the government. The disgusting details of Cassius M. Clay's career are in our possession. We do not publish them because we are not in the habit of occupying these columns with matter of that character. We allude to the fact because it is proper that the people of the West, among whom he has been speaking, should know what decree of credit to attach to the labors of one who has buckled on his harness, furnished his shield, and gone forth bearing aloft the white banner of reform. This is the class of reformers who head the forces of Greeley."

"THE HOME OF HIS BOYHOOD." The broad farce of Greeley's visit to his native land is well shown up in a brief paragraph by the Boston Traveller, which says: "Mr. Greeley's sleep affected for the neighborhood of his nativity may be judged by the fact that he got but two visits from his neighborhood at his. He first went to Concord, where, after consultation with his supporters there, hied to Bradford, forty miles from the place of his birth, but attractive to him because it is the residence of the leading 'Liberal' of the State. From there he went to Lancaster, the home of the Chairman of the thin New Hampshire delegation at Cincinnati. A deep-seated affection for childhood's home and childhood's friends spoiled have led his footsteps in another direction. He had a perfect right to go where he was inclined to go, but it is only just that the purpose of his visit to his native State should be understood. As he himself intimated in his Hampden speech, it is duty, imperative duty, that has called him to make this journey, not 'deep affection' for the scenes of his childhood."

GRAND ARMY REUNION. We learn from the Press that a large number of the members of the G. A. R. and returnee soldiers visited Portland on Wednesday, and were met on their arrival and escorted to Grand Army Hall, where Saunders had an elegant breakfast in readiness. At about 11 o'clock the column was formed for parade in the following order:

Platoon of Police, under Capt. J. M. Black.
Portland Band, 20 pieces.
Post Commander Wm H. Green of Post Bosworth, and Aids.
1st Co. Post Bosworth, B. W. C. Yeaton, 60 men.
Department Commander Daniel Wister, with staff.
Mayor Kingsbury, members of City Government and invited guests.
2d Co. Post Bosworth, J. V. C. Allen, 36 men.
3d Co., post uniformed men here Post Forsworth, commanded by H. R. Sargent, 80 men.
Grand Army Drum Corps.
Army and Navy Union, under Vice President Somerby, 29 men.
Detachment of 16 men from Post Preble, under Sergeant Ryan.
Knox Post, No. 3, Lewiston, and Folsom Post, No. 4, Augusta, with Hiram Snow, commander, 20 men.
Mountfort Post, No. 7, Brunswick, John Proach, J. V. C., 30 men.
Hench Post, No. 3, Gardiner, P. H. Cunningham commander, 20 men.
Butler Post, No. 15, Wiscasset, 12 men.

There were delegates from E. H. Beale Post, Bangor; Berry Post, Lisbon; D. A. White Post, Kenduskeag; Farragut Post, Bridgton; Posts 11, 22, and 125 of Boston; Phil Sheridan Post, Salem; Lynn Post; Conway, N. H., Post; Portsmouth Post, and Needham, Mass.

In the afternoon the organization went down to Little Chebeague. In the evening there was a clambake, followed by a rally in City Hall. Gen. Mathocks presided over the formal preliminary exercises. Mayor Kingsbury warmly welcomed the visitors to Portland, and paid a handsome compliment to the organization of the Grand Army. Gen. White, the Department Commander, responded for his comrades. He thanked the Mayor for the courtesies which they had received, and especially to Congressman Post Bosworth for carrying through so well the happy idea of a general reunion of comrades. Gen. James A. Hall followed. He referred to what the soldiers had done for the country in the field, and directed attention particularly to the good the association had accomplished among their suffering fellows by their benevolence.

A stranger who occupied the pulpit in a Baptist church near Dijon, one Sunday, during the first prayer leaned heavily on the desk in front of him which proved to be not fastened as it should be. Suddenly the servant raising their eyes as in starting grace, beheld the head of the desk, the Bible, the hymn-book, a vase of flowers, and an empty goblet strewn upon the floor, while amid the pale flounders ed the official clergyman. Fortunately he was unhurt, and after order was restored proceeded with the service.

Children whose brain development is unusually large in comparison with the body, are most frequently singled out for a premature final resting place. Why is this? Simply because the functions of the body are too frail to supply the waste going on in the brain consequent upon active intelligence. Follows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is especially that it imparts the vital principle directly to the brain, while it assists in developing a vigorous and robust body.

DOLCE FAR NIENTE.

BY CYMORIUS.

The world still moves, you say. Little it recks to me;
Wherever it moves or whence. I am weary of sak-ing
Nature to open the door locked by her master key
Is I not better to lie here in the sunlight bask-ing?

A truce to your fiddle of life. I am not in the mood to think.
How can you stand aloof, with Nature at arm's length?
Culling a wealf at her feet, here where the honey bees clink,
Out of the clover cups, the joy of the fields and their strength.

You live in a new world built within the void of your brain,
By dreaming peopled, that swarm and die like summer flies;
Build as high as you will these castles of yours in the skies;
I am content with the world that caters in at the eyes;

This splendid, emerald world, so daintily inlaid
With the virgin's amber hue, the clover's white and red;
The sunbeam's sparkling flow, over the lip of the glade;
The lovely floating wings of butterflies, over-head;

With fragrance of blossomed trees and silvery trilling streams
Of warbling birds that fill in and out of the leafy domes;
With noise meeting sunset flight that broods on the quiet plains;
And the west-like harvest home with its wealth of golden sheaves,

Here where the world flows in at the gates of every sense,
In abundance, color, and song, let me lie at my ease;
Where the voice of the summer calls with passionless persuasive
Unto the human soul, from flowers and winds and seas.

Through the science that sees only Creation's prosaic
Wiring its outward form, blind to the spirit that dwells
Everywhere of life, the subtle sense of the rose,
The eloquence of brooks, the azure light on the hills.

I lie with indolent hands, but stirred from the lips to the heart
With the rhythm of Nature's poem, her splendor of song unrhymed,
The voice of the world within that rends earth's veil Aeolian,
Like a clear, loud carillon of bells in the darkness chimed.

Your line can never fathom the depth of life's great sea;
There is that in the lowest flower your figures cannot take clear;
The spirit of God's intention that fills all things we see,
And the breath of his love that floodeth the earth like an atmosphere.

JANE COSEY'S WEDDING.

(Concluded.)

Before the gate waited the carriages, their postilions in scarlet jackets; the company, in their fine plumage, jostled each other in the nooks and corners of the house; the maids, wearing a bright uniform of purple gowns and white muslin aprons, ran about wildly. Every two minutes old Coney went up to a staircase window that faced Timberdale, looking out to see whether Robert Ashton was coming—like Sister Anne in Bluebeard.

Twelve o'clock! It was like a knell booming out, and the carriages went away with the company. A fine ending to a wedding, that was.

I was standing at the back door, disconsolate as I was moaning myself, when the Timberdale station fly came rattling along. A gentleman put his head out of it, to tell the driver to stop. He got down and came limping up to me. It was Mr. West's partner, old Cockersmith, who had declined an invitation to the wedding because of gout.

"Look here," said he, catching hold of my shoulder. "I want to say half a dozen words to Mr. Coney. Can you manage to bring him out to me, or smuggle me into any little place where we can be alone? I suppose the house is chock full of wedding-people."

"You have brought bad news of Robert Ashton?" I said, in sudden conviction. What is it?"

"Well, so I have," he answered confidentially. "It will soon be known to everybody, that I'd like to break it to Coney first. I've come over to do it. Robert Ashton is in custody for murder."

I felt my face turn pale as a girl's. "For murder?"

Old Cockersmith pulled a chin as long as two and added. "He's in custody for nothing less than the murder of his brother-in-law, Bird. Yesterday—"

An omnibus behind us; and I turne sharply. There stood Jane. She had seen old Cockersmith's arrival; and came down knowing he must have come with bad news. The white robe and wreath were gone, and also were her every day dress of violet merino.

"Now, my dear! my dear, be calm!" cried old Cockersmith, in a fright. "For goodness sake shut us in somewhere, Johnny Ludlow! We shall have the whole pack in upon us."

Some of the pack did come before he could be shut up. And there we were—hearing that Robert Ashton had been taken up for murder.

It appeared that, after quitting the Cross on the previous day, he met his sister's husband, Captain Bird—from habit, people still accorded him his title. Captain Bird told him Lucy was dangerously ill, asked him to go and see her. Robert went at once to their lodgings. What exactly happened there nobody as yet knew; but Robert and Bird got quarrelling. Robert never came out again. In the morning, (this morning) the neighbors heard a fuss and cry; and on the door being opened by two policemen, Bird was lying in the passage dead as was supposed, and Robert Ashton was given into custody for his murder.

Jane touched me on the arm, and I followed her into the large empty dining-room.—That miserable breakfast! waiting for those who could not sit down to eat it. The evergreens on the wall seemed to look faded; the flowers on the table to have lost their first brightness.

"You see I was right, Johnny," she said, "That dream was a dream of warning, and writ as one."

It did look like it. But dreams are things you don't lay hold of; no, nor believe in.—Standing by the cold grate, she began to shake. In the confusion the servants had let the fire go out.

"I'd forget the dream if I were you, Jane. Where's the use of people having dreams:—"

"Warnings, Johnny."

"—If they cannot see to make use of them? Call them warnings, an you like the thing better. They are of no good at all."

"Oh! Johnny, if I could but die! It was hard enough to bear when he was only missing; but now—"

It was just as though she never meant to leave off shivering. I went to hum for some small sticks, and saw our cook, Molly, in the kitchen spoiling the making of Trust her for being in the midst of the gossip. Bringing the sticks back, I pushed them in, and they soon crackled up into a blaze. Jane sat down and watched them.

Dusk began to come on.

"Why! who was that—driving up in Robert Ashton's dog-cart? Robert? Robert, himself? Yes, it was; and the Squire, and Tod and Tom, and Mary with him. The dog-cart had gone to the station to wait for the orders; they came, bringing Robert Ashton with them.

"Is it all right, Mr. Ashton?"

"Quite right. You did not think it could be wrong, did you?"

"You are out on bail?"

"For good. There has been no real damage done, Johnny. I wonder where Jane is."

"I'll take you to her. She has been wishing she was dead."

Nobody in the house scented his presence I opened the door of the large oak-room.—Jane was kneeling on the hearth-rug, her face buried in the cushion of the arm chair. She started up at the noise, and stood like one struck into stone.

"Robert"

I do believe she thought it was not real—his ghost, or something. He went up in silence, slightly smiling—he was always a quiet mannered man—and holding out his hand.

"Isn't it, myself, Jane. You look as though you doubted it."

"With a great cry she fell forward. Robert caught her to his breast. I was going away when he hastily called to me. For the first time in her life she had fainted away. The thing had been too much for her.

"Get a crop of water, Johnny. Don't call anybody. She'll soon come to."

There was water on the table; wine, too.—He gave Jane some of both. And then she listened to his story, leaning on his arm and crying as softly and peacefully as a child.

Those outside were listening to the wonderful tale. When I went out they had gathered in the front kitchen, round the squire, who had gone there in search of old Coney. The Squire's glowing face was a sight to be seen. Mrs. Coney had sat down on the mahogany bench, her hands lifted. Coney stood with his pipe held at arms length. As to Mrs. Todhetley, the tears were running down her cheeks in a stream.

It was quite true that Lucy Bird was very ill. Robert saw her in bed. As he was leaving, Bird began on the old grievance—that he should advance some of Lucy's money in a lump. He wanted it for lands and dice you see. Robert told him no; as he had done all along. An associate of Bird's was there, a very bad man named Dawler. They got Robert to take a friendly glass of wine—which purported to be sherry; and from that moment he lost all power and parties consciousness. The wine was drugged. Their object no doubt, had been to make him stupid, and so induce him to sign an undertaking to hand over the money to Bird. But they had made the potion too strong, not calculating on the effects it would take on a young and habitually sober man. Robert fell into a deep sleep from which it was impossible to arouse him; as to writing, his hands were dead.—Late in the morning he awoke; and, bit by bit, realized where he was and what had passed. He was a little stupid even then, but quite sensible enough to remember that it was his wedding day, and to foresee that he might have some trouble to get away from the house. On attempting to leave, Bird and Dawler both placed themselves in the passage to prevent him. There was a hot contest. Robert Ashton, stronger man than either of the others, but aware that all his strength was not then at his command, seized a knotted stick, or club that was lying in a corner, and lifted it to cut his way through. Dawler struck at it, to thrust it out of his hand, and struck it against Bird's head with a frightful force. The fellow dropped, as one dead, and the door was burst open by the neighbors and policemen. The excitement, perhaps the exertion, acting on Robert Ashton's only partly recovered state, threw him stupid again; the people took him to be drunk, and Dawler gave him in charge for murder.

This was the history. When the Squire had got into the police court, Robert Ashton (who was nearly himself again through the remedies the doctor had given him in the police station,) was telling his tale. Dawler was contradicting him, and swearing hard and fast that it was a case of deliberate murder. The magistrate Squire was a neighbor and a friend besides them; and the first thing he did was to break into a hot tantrum vowing Robert Ashton couldn't be guilty. How it would have turned out no one knew, but Lucy saved him.

Lucy saved him. A wan, haggard young woman, wrapped in an old shawl, staggered into the justice-room to the first part of the room, it was Lucy Bird. She had come crawling along the streets to tell the truth.

"My brother Robert did not attempt to strike any one," she said in a low, weak earnest tone. "He but held the club in his hand. It was Dawler who threw his weight upon the club, and struck down my husband. Robert fell too, pushed down by Dawler. This is the sole truth, before heaven!"

They believed her. The best was that Bird was not dead after all, only stunned: and the next to appear in court was Himself, with a big white plaster on his forehead. Discovering his wife's pr vate flight to the magistrates he thought it well to go after her; there was no knowing what plots might be in the wind. The whole bench shook hands with Robert Ashton, telling Bird and the other man significantly that they had better take care what they were about for the future; and the Squire brought him home in triumph.

"But where is Robert?" asked old Coney and the rest. "Why, in there with Jane; were-else should he be?" They hurried into the oak room in a body, and found him trying on the ring.

"Why should it, we have a dinner to-night?" asked old Coney. "Last night's was but half a one, through some bother or another."

"Hear, hear!" cried the Squire. "Why not?"

The only thing against it was—as Mrs. Coney said—that no dinner was prepared; unless they could put up with a cold one.

"And glad to," spoke up everybody. So the cold meats were brought from the larder, and the fowls from the breakfast table, and laid in the every-day dining parlor. The ladies were in their ordinary gowns; and there was no room for elbows, but we made up with laughter. Strange, this evening, Jane's wedding being there, and old Cockermuth, who sat down in spite of the gout. Afterwards we went off by the light of the stars to summon the company to the morrow's wedding; it was good to go knocking at the doors with the news; while the servants at the farm, with Molly to help them, began cooking fresh fowls, for the breakfast table.

All that's about all. There was never a better wedding seen, and the scarlet jackets of the postboys dazzled one's eyes on the morning sun. Robert Ashton was calm and quiet in church; Jane too, and not a bit nervous. The chief speech at the breakfast was undertaken by the Squire, so you may give a guess when it was like; but it didn't spoil the wedding-cake.

Jane was shut up, with her mother when the time came for starting, and came out in a great flood of sobbing tears. She was leaving her childhood's home, you see.—Robert would have hurried her straight to the carriage, but the company wouldn't be done out of their leave-taking; I was the last.

"Thank you kindly, Johnny," she sobbed, wringing my hand as she went down the pathway. "They were all very kind to me yesterday, but it seemed that you were the kindest."

In the next minute both of them were in the carriage, with the door shut, and the carriage drove away towards South-Crabb-dunton. The people cheered, the cocks crew, and the old shoes flew after them in a shower.
